

Dollars Do Double Duty

Now ties worth a dollar are common, but Kroger store employees are using a new angle to promote their two-week Dollar Days sale September 24 to October 6. Ties worn by the men are real greenbacks, and the perky hair bows adorning the girls, above, attractive, model Lavonne Breyer straightens Bill Goebel's "bow tie" as Dick Johns looks on admiringly.

Publishers Gloomy Over Newsprint

Hot Springs, Sept. 27 — (AP) — An optimistic note was sounded in the gloomy newsprint problem at the final session of the Southern Newspaper Publishers association convention.

The publishers ended their 40th annual meeting here yesterday. One of the last reports was on experiments with turning old newspapers into newsprint through a de-inking process.

Walter C. Johnson, SNPA secretary manager, said the de-inking newsprint, made in Savannah, Ga., was used with "excellent results" on papers in Fort Worth and Beaumont, Tex.

Johnson said a manufacturing company is being planned and that the mill probably would be built in northern Texas. Publishers will be asked to help finance the project, he added.

Earlier in the convention, the SNPA newsprint mill committee reported that Howarter Paper Corp., a British firm, planned to build a mill near Charleston, Tenn.

The Arkansas synod of the Presbyterian church has been approved by the Arkansas synod of the church.

The synod voted here yesterday to authorize a committee to work toward the completion of the merger of the College of the Ozarks at Clarksville and Arkansas college at Batesville at a meeting in Port Smith Nov. 3.

Committee members of the synod and another group representing the Arkansas presbytery of the Oklahoma synod have recommended that the two institutions be merged under the name "The College of the Ozarks" and be located in Batesville.

The Arkansas synod controls Arkansas college, while the Arkansas presbytery operates Ozarks. The two groups are parts of separate branches of the Presbyterian church.

The presbytery is scheduled to consider the merger in Port Smith Nov. 13.

In ending its annual meeting, the Arkansas synod decided to hold its continental meeting next year in the First Presbyterian church of Little Rock, where the synod was founded.

Kroger Starts Contest for Managers

A. E. Evans, Kroger store manager here, has entered a company-wide contest, in which an unexpected winter vacation in Florida is offered as first prize.

He is competing against 62 other store managers in this area from which 2 winners will be picked.

In all, 48 Kroger store managers and their wives will leave for Florida on January 4, 1952. During their Florida visit they will see St. Augustine, Marineland, Daytona Beach, Silver Springs, Cypress Gardens, and Miami Beach, where they will stay at the exclusive Vanderbilt Hotel.

In addition more than 3,000 prize awards will be divided by store employees throughout the company. The local store will compete against six other stores of comparable size, with all employees of the store showing the highest sales gain during the eight-week period of the contest receiving prize awards.

Prizes will include home appliances, home furnishings, sporting equipment, jewelry and clothing.

To assist Mr. Evans in winning these awards, the company has scheduled an anniversary sale during the contest weeks, September 17 to November 24, celebrating Kroger's 69 years in the food business. Founded in Cincinnati, Ohio, by the late D. H. "Harney" Kroger, the company has grown from one store in Cincinnati's waterfront to over 2,000 stores in 10 middle-western and southern states.

Postman Charged With Delaying Mail

Toxarkana, Tex., Sept. 27 — (AP) — A Toxarkana postman who wearied of his heavy work load today faced prosecution on federal charges of detaining and delaying the mail.

James V. McGuire was arrested after three bushel baskets of undelivered mail was found in his apartment, said Postal Inspector R. O. Estes.

Estes said McGuire, 34, told him that he was overburdened on his route and left letters at his home from time to time. Some of the letters dated back to November, 1950.

McGuire waived preliminary hearing yesterday and was held in jail in lieu of $500 bond.

Wesleyan Service Guild Month

October is the Wesleyan Service Guild Month.

The Women's Division of Christian Service includes the Wesleyan Service Guild for gainfully employed women in the Methodist Church. In 1940 when the three branches of Methodism, Protestant South and North came together in unification to form the Methodist Church, the Wesleyan Service Guild became a part of the Women's Division of Christian Service in order to provide the employed women the same opportunities for service and fellowship as found in the Women's Society. The members of the Guild are eager to extend its service to include not only this group within the church but also their friends and associates in the world of their work.

The District meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Hope District will be held in DeQueen Arkansas Tuesday, October 2, Miss Bertha Golden, District Secretary, urges every member of the Hope Guild to attend this meeting. Miss Clarice Cannon, president of the

Agents Round Up Price Violators

Washington, Sept. 26.-(AP)—The full enforcement strength of the office of price stabilization (OPS) fell on the nation's meat packing and distributing industry yesterday and as the day closed OPS agents charged 96 price control violations in 27 cities.

It was a temporary and incomplete total. The Atlantic price office said enforcement raids there showed a "majority" of big and little slaughterers in violation. The Los Angeles office announced packers in its area "fairly generally" failed to keep required records and in other cases refused to open their records to inspection.

St. Paul, Minn., headed the violations list — with 30 alleged offenses — in first reports from the over 200 cities where OPS inspection teams invaded meat plants.

Simultaneously, there were these other developments here on the controls front:

1. Economic Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson and Price Stabilizer Eric Johnston gave a group of writers and editors a briefing in which it was disclosed that:

—The defense production administration has ready for use orders that would re-impose rent controls on 3,000,000 dwelling units in 200 cities whenever Wilson and Secretary of Defense Lovett decide they are needed.

—OPS is going to replace "formula" price controls for many manufactured goods with dollars and cents ceilings.

—New beef retail ceilings—a follow-up to higher beef wholesale price authorized last week—will go into effect this week, adding an average 1-2 cents a pound to butcher counter beef prices.

2. OPS announced new dollars and cents tops on wholesale pork prices, effective Oct. 1. OPS officials said the result may be a drop of as much as five cents a pound in some places in ham and bacon prices.

3. The senate banking committee voted in favor of handing back to the government authority to impose — but with conditions this time — livestock slaughtering quotas.

4. The agriculture department reported that meat production under federal inspection continued last week to be under the level of a year ago. It gave smaller marketings of beef cattle — down 15 per cent — as the reason. But marketing of hogs was up, the department said, by seven per cent.

Wednesday afternoon September 19 in the home of Mrs. James Lewis.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. Lewis. The Home Demonstration Club women's creed was given, followed by the song of the month "Home in the Country". Scripture was read by Mrs. A. F. Bohannon with prayer by Mrs. K. F. Bradley. Roll call was answered by "My Favorite Color Combination." Reports of leaders of poultry and gardens were given.

Refreshments were served to 9 members, one guest, Mrs. G. P. Martin, one child and Mrs. Lorraine Blackwood, Home Demonstration Agent.

The club will meet in October with Mrs. Floyd Matthews.

Melrose

The Melrose Home Demonstration Club met on September 18 in the home of Mrs. J. F. Mangum. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. H. E. Patterson. The group repeated the creed. The hostess read the devotional followed by the group repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The members that made the tour of North Arkansas gave reports on the trip. Old and new business was discussed.

Mrs. Hickey gave an interesting talk and demonstration on color scheme, the selecting of furniture and hanging pictures.

Mrs. Hickey won the surprise package and Mrs. Patterson won the game prize.

The hostess served refreshments to ten members, Mrs. Blackwood and two visitors, Mrs. S. M. Hamilton and Miss Sula Roberts.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Florence Hartsfield October 16. Visitors are invited to meet with us.

Swindler Is Composing Songs

Pittsburgh, Sept. 27.-(AP)—A convicted swindler is composing songs which he says he hopes can be sold to repay victims of his $212,000 thousand fraud.

"I don't want a penny for myself," declared Raymond E. Reynolds, 32-year-old former builder who is serving a 10-year jail sentence. "My greatest desire is to pay back those people from whom I obtained the money."

The once-dapper contractor asked the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in a letter to help him peddle his tunes, most of which deal with romantic themes.

Reynolds was convicted of accepting down payments on homes which were never built. He was arrested in May of 1950 after a nationwide search which ended in Los Angeles.

Delegates Open 'Disciples' Meet

Little Rock, Sept. 27.-(AP)—Delegates from five states opened a three-day convention of the Little Rock area assembly, International Convention, Disciples of Christ, here yesterday.

They heard Mrs. James D. Wyker, Columbia, Mo., plead for a national return to moral power and religious faith.

"Faith must supplant fear," said Mrs. Wyker. "For those who put their faith in xxx God there can be no fear, however uncertain the future may be."

Mrs. Wyker is president of the general department of United Church Women, National Council of

Caldwell Picks Some Big Targets

By VERN HAUGLAND
(For James Marlow)

Washington, Sept. 26 — (AP) — When Millard Caldwell loads his gun for bear, he's likely to pick out some pretty big targets. Gen. of the Army George Marshall, for example, or Secretary of the Air Force Finletter. Or the whole U.S. congress.

Caldwell is a tall, rangy former Florida governor — and former congressman — with heavy, Lincolnian brows, a detached, dispassionate manner and a finely honed razor tongue.

For the better part of a year now he has been saddled with one of the most frustrating jobs in government — trying to whip up public and congressional interest in a full-scale atomic-age civil defense program. Caldwell is administrator of the federal civil defense administration (ECDA).

Recently Caldwell presented the house appropriations committee with an estimate of $335,000,000 as his agency's minimum requirement for the year ending next June 30. The figure would have provided $250,000,000 for matching state appropriations in a bomb-shelter construction program, and $200,000,000 for the stockpiling of emergency supplies and equipment.

The house termed the program unrealistic and slashed it to $63,355,000. The matter now is before the senate.

Caldwell says the house figure would spell a "lingering death" for his agency. Congress doesn't know what civil defense means," he told reporters, not once but on many occasions.

Caldwell also took out after Fin-

THE STORY: John Clayton, former civilian scout from Fort Kearney, is wounded and captured by Crazy Horse's Sioux warriors at the scene of the Little Bighorn massacre. Clayton already has a reputation as a "thrive warrior" in Indian eyes and he is turned back to health by Wilton Wakon, an Indian "bold warrior." Clayton persuades Crazy Horse to take him to her after his recovery.

of the Buffalo" into the Black Hills. We would ride at daybreak, as soon as the sun, pushed his burning scalplock above the world's edge.

When Crazy Horse had gone, I sat alone in the tipi trying to make some sense of my predicament.

Here was I, J. B. Clayton, ex-colonel of Confederate cavalry, proud by training as well as birth, squatting by an Indian tipi fire in the hostile heart of the Dakotas, clad in dooskin leggings, shirt and moccasins, smoking a stone pipe loaded with reeking kinnikinnick leaves, rocking on my leather-covered heels, staring into a Sioux fire, talking in the Ojibwa tongue, thinking with an Indian mind, hopelessly in love with an Indian girl I had never seen and could never possess.

When I awakened I was still with cold. Above the smoke-hole gray dawn paled. Over me stood Crazy Horse, dressed in black wolfskin winter clothes, arms folded, a rare smile on his grim lips.

"It was a good dream, my brother?"

"Truly it was," I answered. "I have seen the Star again. And she told me to hurry to her."

A shadow passed over his dark face. "The ponies are ready," he grunted. "Even now they are ready, standing outside."

"We shall depart, my brother," I muttered quickly and lost no time donning the gray wolfskin coat he had brought me.

As we passed through the tipi flap, a fierce neigh shattered the morning quiet. I was nearly beaten down by the rearing and hoof-lashings of a gaunt-up bay.

Hussein!

"We found him where you had tethered him. Since none could approach him, I shot his tether through. He ran with us, ever following the travois upon which we bore you. In each camp he stood by your tipi. Nor would he

SHE had been captured, as a girl of five or six, by the Ojibwa, in a raid on a Crow Village far to the west and north. She was not a Crow, that tribe in turn having captured her, but where she was taken or what her origins had been, Crazy Horse's people had never been able to determine.

There had been a sort of half-story related by an old Crow medicine woman, which said the child had been brought up from Mexico by the Apaches and sold into slavery among the Comanches, from whom the Crows stole her. But Tashunka Witko did not vouch for this.

She was, even then, a child of startling beauty, her peculiar green eyes at once commanding the imaginations of the Ojibwa, for in their legends the Sioux had all sprung from a common origin, the Earth Mother. The stories handed down by uncounted generations of old village tellers of tales, had dimmed somewhat the details of the Earth Mother's appearance, but on one particular all descriptions agreed: her eyes had been green as lake-ice.

They built her a great lodge in the heart of their magnificent homeland, the mysterious He Sapa, the Black Hills. Throughout the year she divide her time, visiting various of the Seven Sioux Council Fires, living now with this tribe, now with that, carrying always and everywhere her magic power to heal.

OUR course led through Pte Ta Tyopa, the historic "Gateway letter and other military officials. He referred to published accounts quoting the military as indicating the danger of attack on the United States is over.

On the basis of protests by Caldwell, Finletter explained that in testimony before a senate subcommittee, consistently advocated a strong civil defense for this nation as an urgent and continuing necessity. My personal convictions are strong that we must have a competent civil defense system in being. "I wish to reassure you of my desire to support your program. I consider that the buildup of the civilian capabilities in this field is essential, not only from a humanitarian standpoint, but as a military necessity."

Caldwell then assailed the Marshall letter before the committee. He said it lacked force, failed to convey a sense of urgency, and was obviously a response to a re-eat of dried grasses which I ordered brought to him. Surely he would have died but for North Star, who approached him without fear and with her magic made him eat of the grasses."

I tried to reduce this to logic, getting no better surmise than that the horse had sensed my odor upon her hands, thus allowing Star to touch and feed him.

Regardless, horse and man both owed their lives to her, and it was a debt I meant to see repaid, and with interest.

IN the tipi of Many Kills, we were made welcome, his women hurrying to prepare us food.

After the meal, Many Kills brought out his pipe, lighting it with a coal from the fire, passing it around the circle until it had been smoked out.

After a suitable interval of comely exchanging, during which I flatteringly learned my under-served reputation as a warrior had preceded me, I asked Many Kills if I were free to come and go as I wished. He was local head of the Fox Lodge, the law-and-order society of the Sioux Nation, the police force, if you will, of the Indian social system.

"Can Mani may go," The chief's words were easy, without hint of restraint.

"I would see the realm of Star of the North," was all I said, rising to go and departing, without a backward glance. I was learning to talk Indian fashion; short and to the point.

Outside, I found Crazy Horse had followed me. He gestured toward the climbing sun, then the ground upon which we stood. I understood I was to return to this spot. "When the sun was in the middle," I nodded, swung up on Hussein and started off.

He called after me, "You will not see the Wiyan Wakon yet. She is now in prayer to the morning and will see no one while the sun is above."

"This must be true," I called back. "Surely such a star is best seen in darkness." He looked at me, not answering, leaving me with the uncomfortable feeling I had not said the right thing.

Jury to Throw the Book at Harry Gross

New York, Sept. 26 — (UPI) — A hopping-mad Brooklyn racket-busting grand jury was expected today to throw the book at bally Bookie Harry Gross.

Gross, whose gambling empire in three New York boroughs once handled $20,000,000 a year in bets and shelled out $1,000,000 yearly in protection money to cops, wrecked the grand jury's bribery indictment of 12 past and present policemen last week by clamping up on the witness stand.

Gross refused to testify when the time came for him to name the defendants as participants in a conspiracy to accept his "ice" — graft payments — in return for protection of his empire. The indictment, product of 22 months of work by the grand jury, was dismissed.

Now it was the grand jury's turn to slap back at Gross. It was expected to indict him for criminal contempt of court. The criminal contempt charges, each punishable by a year in jail and a $1,000 fine, would be based on the sleek book-maker's refusal on the stand to answer questions after being directed to do so by Kings county Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz.

Leibowitz already had cited Gross summarily for contempt in refusing to answer 60 questions and sentenced him on the spot to the maximum on each of the 60 counts — a total of 1,800 days in jail and $15,000 in fines.

Gross also was scheduled to be sentenced tomorrow by a three-judge special sessions panel on his plea of guilty to 60 counts of book-making and conspiracy. Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald has indicated he will recommend that the jail sentence be more than 10 years and the fine around $100,000.

The mood of the grand jury was disclosed yesterday when it handed to Judge Leibowitz an interim presentment charging a "frightening alliance" between the gambling and vice squads of the New York police department and "organized criminals."

The grand jury demanded a house-cleaning by the police commissioner. The firing of virtually all officers, who have had, during a 10-year period prior to October, 1950, an executive responsibility for the "placelings" or vice squad sections of the department.

It recommended a system of district attorneys' investigators to check systematically on the work of the police.

quest — a solicited testimonial. "It could have been written about education or the religious forces, or the Red Cross," Caldwell said. "This business of getting 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 American citizens to give up their time, money and efforts to become a part of an active, moving, effective organization is a tough one, and the motivation requires some pretty strong language at the top levels."

"The only way that I know that will get this thing moving effectively is for the defense department to get behind it and give it a push in good sharp language."

Levett replied that (A) Marshall does not write a flamboyant letter — that's not his character — but writes a "fairly laconic" document in which each word is supposed to count (B) whether the letter was solicited or not was beside the point.

What the effect of Caldwell's prodding may be upon congress remains to be seen.

McMath in Answer to Mr. Tackett

Little Rock, Sept. 26 — (AP) — The dispute over Arkansas' power supply has flared anew, with Governor McMath issuing a scorching reply to charges that his public statements caused new industries to bypass the state.

McMath yesterday sent a strong, worded telegram to Rep. Boyd Tackett (D-Ark) in answer to accusations made by Tackett Monday night. Tackett charged that McMath's frequent statements that Arkansas suffers from a shortage of electrical power had caused prospective industries to locate elsewhere.

The congressman's statement followed a request from the governor that the state's congressional delegation to help Arkansas obtain electric industry, particularly aluminum plants which may be moved from the Pacific Northwest because of a West Coast power shortage.

Declaring that Tackett's statement "obviously (was) dictated by the utility lobby in Washington," the governor said:

"We would now have on hand greater power generating facilities and our power potential would be more nearly approached had it not been for the near-sighted, selfish and dog-in-the-manger attitude of the utility interests for whom you speak and whose interests you apparently represent."

He stated, "I said McMath's telegram, 'What Arkansas has the power potential to supply the aluminum processing plants which the nation now needs so desperately and are situated on the West Coast.' Your information, there is quite a difference between power potential and power in being."

Because of our water, gas and coal resources, Arkansas has the greatest power potential of almost any state in the union. I have encouraged the development of private and public projects in Arkansas so that, together, they could supply ever increasing demands for electricity.

"The construction of government dams in Arkansas and in the nation have been consistently opposed by the utility lobbies. In many instances the projects have been defeated. In all instances construction of power projects have been delayed because of this opposition.

"The current case is the fight being made by the utilities against the construction of the steam generating plant at Ozark. This plant is to provide more electric power at cheaper rates to the farmers of Arkansas. You recall this case because you appeared before the public service commission on the side of the utilities."

McMath referred to $10,500,000 power plant proposed by the Arkansas Electric Co-operative corp. The project was approved by the PSC, but private utilities have appealed the decision to the courts.

"I had hoped that in this instance you would place the interests of the state above your allegiance to the electric bond and share of Wall Street, xxx."

"You may be assured that I will not bother you further on any matters that may even conceivably conflict with the interests of your Wall Street constituents."

McMath said that Senators Fulbright and McClellan and Reps. Hays and Trimble had wired him assurance that they would do all they could to obtain additional aluminum plants for Arkansas.

With the exception of Tackett, McMath said he was "sure that I shall receive a similar response from the remaining members of the delegation."

Sufficient Power

Little Rock, Sept. 26 — (AP) — An electric utility executive says there is a sufficient supply of power available to support another aluminum industry in Arkansas.

Charles M. Custer, director of the Southwest power pool, said in an interview here yesterday, that his agency could start delivering 10,000 kilowatt an hour "today if necessary."

"This output, said Custer, would not tax present generating capacity of the pool — an integrated system of electricity involving 11 privately-owned utilities in Oklahoma, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Custer said the power is held in reserve and could be made available.

About 40,000 kilowatts of power an hour are needed to operate one aluminum potline in which alumina is converted into molten aluminum.

Custer's statement came after James P. Fairman, defense electric power administrator announced in Washington that "there is no available power supply anywhere in the United States."

Fairman referred to Defense Mobilization Charles E. Wilson's recent statement in which he asked aluminum producers in the Pacific Northwest to consider moving their plants elsewhere because of a power shortage in that area.

A number of errors in the earlier's surface have been proved to have been caused by falling meteors.

Ike Won't Run Unless to Save Treaty

Washington, Sept. 26 — (AP) — Ike supporters challenged today reports Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower won't run for president unless he can save the North Atlantic Treaty organization (NATO).

This report, brought back from a visit to Eisenhower's Paris headquarters by Republican Gov. Walter J. Kohler, Jr., of Wisconsin, was discounted by Senator Duff (R-Pa.).

Duff, one of the leaders of a move to draft the general for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination, told a reporter:

"For my part, it's going to be only on payday and that's what counts with me."

This was a reference to Duff's belief that when the time comes, Eisenhower will make it known he believes his job of NATO commander is far enough along so he can turn it over to someone else and become available for nomination.

Although he wouldn't comment directly on Kohler's statement, senator Carlson (R-Kan.) indicated similar confidence that Eisenhower can be had by the Republicans if they want him.

Carlson said he expects to see the general on a European visit this fall. A similar trip by Duff has been delayed by the failure of Congress to wind up its work.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) wouldn't comment but Senator Brewster (R-Me.) one of the Oblique's backers for the 1952 GOP presidential nomination, said he is "not surprised" that Eisenhower would take this position.

Observing that it was "a nifty proposition" at best, Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) said the time is coming, however, when Eisenhower "will have to speak out very definitely on the subject" of the presidential nomination.

Columbus, O., Sept. 26 — (AP) — Lee Joughard of Detroit, 130 points of 10-pin quarry, today was named 1951's "Bowler of the Year" by the National Bowling Writers Association.

Embazzler Is Freed on Bond

Hot Springs, Sept. 26 — (AP) — A no true bill has been returned by the Garland county grand jury in the case of a former bookkeeper who had been accused of embezzling $1,450 from Levi hospital here.

Karl Kaufman was exonerated yesterday by the jury, which also refused to indict four other persons in another embezzlement case.

Four men who had been charged with accepting part of $94,002 embezzled from the Arkansas Trust Co. here were cleared.

They are George and Jack Pakis, Garnett Tucker and Lee Ault. All had been accused of accepting money from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stokes.

Mrs. Stokes, a former employe of the bank, is free on $5,000 bond on a charge of embezzling the sum. Her husband is free on $10,000 bond on a charge of abetting the theft. Both are awaiting action of a federal grand jury.

Ault was fined $100 in municipal court yesterday on a misdemeanor charge of accepting bets on horse races.

GETS NCAA POST

Chicago, Sept. 25 — (AP) — Walter Byers, Big Ten administrative aide for the last four years, has been appointed to fill the newly created post of executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association with offices in Kansas City.

Byers, a native of Kansas City, attended Rice Institute as a freshman and the final three years at the University of Iowa.

The NCAA's executive office and the National Collegiate Athletic bureau now in New York will be moved to Kansas City next spring.

Convict's Offer Is Rejected

Buford, Ga., Sept. 26 — (P) — A reported offer to surrender by one of six desperadoes who escaped Monday has been rejected by state prison officials because the offer had strings attached.

J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of the state board of corrections, said a relative of Joe Lee Bishop, reported Bishop would surrender if assured he would be transferred back to Tattall state prison at Reidsville.

Bishop was at Tattall before being sent to the prison for incorrigibles here, where he and five other of Georgia's toughest lawbreakers fled amid buckshot blasts.

Hatchett's reply to the offer last night was:

"We definitely won't barter with an escape convict."

Hatchett and other state officials investigated the escape yesterday and cleared prison guards of any negligence.

Warden W. N. McEllan said the six convicts who escaped had been held inside the prison proper until Monday. That day, he said, Negroes assigned to wheelbarrows at the rock crushing machine revolted, hurling rocks at the guards.

The Negroes were placed in solitary confinement and the six who

State Won't Let Man Pay Fines

Little Rock, Sept. 26 — A Springfield man is attempting to pay the state of Arkansas $100 he feels he owes in unassessed fines. But the state apparently won't accept the money.

Early this month, the man, whose name was withheld, sent the state revenue department a check to cover fines he said he felt he owed for violations by his trucking operations which had gone unnoticed by officers in the middle 1930's.

The revenue department returned the check, explaining that the state couldn't accept the money because it couldn't find where the trucker had violated any laws and its ledgers don't include a "conscience column."

Now the man has sent the check in again.

"Frankly, we don't know what to do about it," said W. L. Woodard, director of the revenue department's motor vehicle division. "We have about decided to return it a second time."

Dr. Jones to New Job on Nov. 1

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 26 — Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president elect of Rutgers University, expects to take over his new post about Nov. 1.

Dr. Jones, who resigned as president of the University of Arkansas to head the New Jersey state university held his first news conference here.

Dr. Jones said Rutgers' must regard the entire state as its campus.

has been the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Davis.

Miss Sue Jones, who attends Baylor University, Dallas, was the weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jones.

Pat Combs of El Dorado was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McSwain. He was accompanied home by Mrs. Combs who has been a guest in the McSwain home the past week.

Mrs. Clara B. Stone and Miss Luella Stone had as their guest Sunday, H. S. Brooks of Chicago.

Charles McKelvey of Little Rock was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Bonis. Mrs. G. W. McKelvey remained for a longer visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson White Jr. had as their Sunday guests, Mrs. Annabelle Parker and Mrs. Dexter Bush of Texarkana and Miss Prudence Parker of Houston, Texas.

Miss Lillie Butcher has returned from a weeks stay in Fort Smith as the guest of Miss Veinia Humphrey.

DOROTHY DIX Past Mistakes

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl of 19, have been married five years and have a daughter 3 years old. I love my husband very much, but I have been away from home over a year now and would like to go back for a visit. My home is 900 miles away, but my husband won't let me go. He says he can't get along without me and can't bear to be away from the baby. Am I being selfish in wanting to see my family? My mother and father are getting old.

Answer: Having assumed the duties of wife and mother as such a tender age, and fulfilling them so completely, you certainly deserve an occasional visit to your parents. Your husband's devotion and dependence on you are understandable, but he should give you a little consideration, too.

Avoid A Quarrel

If, however, he should remain in adamant in his refusal to give you this brief vacation, there's nothing to do but give it up. If you won your visit home at the expense of a serious quarrel, you wouldn't enjoy yourself and all the good would be gone from the vacation. Your husband practically robbed the cradle in marrying you, in view of your tender years, he should appreciate the fact that home ties are stronger with you than they might be if you had married older. Giving in on this point would create no hardship for him, and I do hope you can make him see how unfair he is in demanding everything for himself and granting you nothing.

Dear Miss Dix: I have met a man ten years my junior and recently been begged to forget me because of the difference in age. He is 23 and is very much in love with me. He says he doesn't care how old I am, but if you belong to such a group,

He asked me to marry him as soon as he gets leave from camp. I do love him too, but I'm afraid our age difference may cause later embarrassment.

Answer: Yours is a border-line case that, from an age standpoint alone, may or may not work out. If a woman is just a few years older than a man, I have no hesitancy in advising them to forget the age difference, if the disparity is very great, from either angle, a successful marriage is unlikely. So much depends upon the maturity of you both, especially your young man.

If you are both of exceptional character, ready to cope with all the difficulties that will unquestionably mark your life, go ahead! But consider the problems carefully before you do. You already realize that you'll encounter embarrassing moments which at first may be passed off as "kidding," but later will be just plain annoying. When your husband is 33, you'll be entering middle age, and unless his love for you is very great, that's when he'll begin to appraise younger women with resultant comparisons that will not be favorable to you. Weighing the respective merits of both sides of the question, I would advise against the marriage, but the final decision is, of course up to you.

Dear Miss Dix: Is it possible for a person to believe in God, honestly feel that he is saved and still enjoy seeing good, clean, funny shows?

Answer: This of course, can be a very controversial question since some religious groups consider all such forms of entertainment sins.

TO BOOST PRICES

Memphis, Sept. 26 — (P) — The subscription price of the Commercial Appeal, the morning newspaper here, will be boosted five cents Monday.

The paper announced today that you will, of course, abstain from shows.

If you are asking the question from a purely academic standpoint, I do not believe there is anything wrong in clean shows—or any other form of harmless entertainment. Make sure you comply with your religious duties such as attendance at church, obedience to the commandments of both God and church and you should be free to enjoy any entertainment presented under the proper auspices and conditions.

(Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

the new weekly rates, daily and Sunday, will be 45 cents. The boost was reported due to the increased cost of newsprint and operating expenses.

From where I sit... by Joe Marshall On the "Care and Feeding" of a Tractor

Dutch Wagner got up at the Grange Meeting the other night and gave some pointers on how to make farm machinery last longer.

"Farmers would save themselves a lot of time and worry," said Dutch, "if they'd just take the time to read the instruction book from cover to cover."

"Another thing that's often overlooked," Dutch went on, "is the lubrication of moving parts." He wound up by saying how important it is to make repairs on farm equipment right away—instead of trusting to luck and a patch job.

From where I sit, these are pretty elementary precautions, but it's often the obvious that's neglected. Here retailers in this state realize this. That's why they cooperate voluntarily with the Browning Industry's Self-Regulation Program, and are always alert to even the most obvious things—such as keeping their places clean and orderly. With a tavern or a tractor, it pays to keep it "running right."

Every breath of VICKS VAPORUB IN STEAM relieves croupy night coughs of colds

Special medicated steam brings soothing DEEP-ACTION RELIEF

Now those croupy, coughing spells that attack children without warning are relieved so fast with this home-proved treatment . . . two heaping spoonfuls of Vicks VapoRub in a vaporizer or bowl of boiling water as directed in package. It's easy, too . . . Your little one just breathes in the steam. Everybreath carries VapoRub's relief-giving medications deep into troubled throat and large bronchial tubes. There this wonderful treatment medicates and soothes dry, irritated membranes, eases away coughing, helps restore normal breathing. And real comfort comes in no time at all.

For coughing spasms, upper bronchial congestion and that choked-up feeling caused by colds, there's nothing like using Vicks VapoRub in steam.

And always rub it on for continued relief

To insure continued action, always rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back. Works for hours—even while your child sleeps—to relieve distress. It's the best-known home remedy you can use when any cold strikes child or grown-up.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pagler
Copyright, 1951
By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Sept. 25 — Ford Frick, the new "commissioner" of baseball, the Robert A. Taft of that association, took it very good so early, a gentleman incapable of petty affectations and thoroughly qualified for the highest responsibility in his field.

Baseball, in the professional sense, which is almost all there is of it now, is no less an industry than steel or automobiles. The corporate structure of the Yankees, with their descending subsidiaries, and their severe efficiency in the business realm, would convince the most public addict but without necessarily disenchanting him.

Like Frick during our years together in the press camp, I had a sensitive ear for the crack of the bat, and we could also relax and amuse ourselves on the illusion of sport. The magnates of stockholders were forever trying our faith in baseball as the national game by acts of burlesque, unfeeling manipulation as when Casey Stengel but two years ago on one rainy day to win for the Giants the only two games they did win in a World Series with the Yankees, and next year did not to the honor, displayed by young Jimmy O'Connell, a child "bought" from a Coast League club. The proprietors were always torturing us that way.

In October, St. Louis or Washington would be frantic over a group of persons, all strangers to the town, employed by a soulless corporation to play baseball. Madmen rode in the streets and hotel lobbies, in self-induced and idiotic frenzies because the Cardinals or Senators had won their respective first pennants. Few of those individuals had any prospect of seeing any of the games starting tomorrow and few of them had seen more than an occasional game during the season. There was no television and radio was inefficient, but the World Series was nevertheless a national gala unlike any other anywhere in the world.

For many years, in small towns of the major leagues, newspapers spent considerable money, for those days, on mechanical score-boards with little figures, representing games which were heroic to many millions, moving here and there as the play-by-play account came over the press association wires. Crowds blocked the streets and traffic was detained. But the magnates never hesitated to dump a great man off his pedestal in cold contempt for public sentiment in some trade or sale intended to improve a club or, frankly, to reap a profit, as when Connie Mack wrecked his first great team of athletes.

Still the affection of the people is maintained for the game, as a game, and as a peculiar sentiment. I treasure, and this notwithstanding some extraordinary and unnecessarily sudden impositions on them by the business side in recent years. One highly popular and successful executive got rich scalping tickets.

Frick comes to his office, the strange, artificial office of "commissioner," at a time when his strong, honest, undramatic character can be of great service. He is not a showman. Unlike the late Judge Andis, he will not make himself conspicuous. The judge was a gentleman, too, but he had a wide streak of ham, affectionately known as eccentricity, and his hat his cotton poll, his stick and his affected glower, constituted that which actors call fly-catching. He was hunched into the act, distracting attention from the players. Happy Chandler was another, a genial fellow and a fighter who first showed his courage when he stood across the desk from Roosevelt and told him that no man living could forbid him to run for the senate in Kentucky. Roosevelt, another showman, had undertaken to rule Chandler out in the interest of the "party" as a whole.

Few men defied him as Happy did and Happy defied him knowing Roosevelt was a malicious fellow who would give him the works. Roosevelt did but Chandler nevertheless came back and when the job of baseball commissioner was vacant, Happy was picked for his personality, his charm, not his ability nor, it must be admitted, his character. He was a stand-up man, to be sure, as he showed again in the incident which presently cost him his baseball job. Happy had thrown Leon Dusecher out of baseball for a whole season for reasons which would have justified his expulsion for life. Now he was starting after disreputable characters who had been allowed to buy into the business without the customary minimum requirements as to reputation. That brash attack was what threw him. Like the United States senate, the magnates now insisted on a right to judge the moral qualifications of their own colleagues.

Frick is not a direct-actionist but he will accomplish Happy's purpose without notoriety. He will get it done for he is an upright man and he has more genuine sensitive feeling for baseball as an institution than any of the men who vote to give him the job of restoring public confidence in their business. The likeness of Frick to Taft and the analogy of their situation in striking many Americans, including many self-important Republicans long used to gaudy conduct as a substitute for honor, ability and dignity, are afraid to take a chance on Taft. The magnates of the baseball business had better

Argument Leads to Fatal Shooting

Fort Smith, Sept. 26 — A one-car hit employee was fatally wounded here yesterday by a shot from a pistol fired by a man whom he had been arguing with earlier.

Sebastian County Sheriff Practice Marx said Raymond Mitchell, 32, was shot to death on the spot where he worked.

Wall T. Lamb, 51-year-old railroad conductor of nearby Van Buren, Ark., has been charged with the shooting.

Marx quoted Lamb as saying

Senate Votes Down Tax on Corporations

Washington, Sept. 26 — The senate today voted down, 54 to 33, a proposal to make corporations pay higher taxes on all of their 1951 income.

The vote sustained the finance committee in fixing April 1 as the effective date for higher corporation taxes.

Lehman estimated the April 1 date would save corporations $500,000,000 in the first year's operations under the new (16) schedule.

"This is not time for mollycoddling—either ourselves as individuals, our people or our corporations," Lehman declared.

The house in passing its $7,200,000,000 tax bill, set Jan. 1 for the start of the five percentage points increase in the corporation levy. The senate finance group went along with that boost but shifted the effective date.

Cotton Picking in Full Swing

Little Rock, Sept. 27 — The crop reporting service said today that cotton picking is in full swing throughout Arkansas and is 50 percent complete in the south central and southeastern portions. The report added:

"Harvest has been hampered by rain in some areas, and damp cool weather has checked opening in the northeastern counties. In a few counties yields are lower than expected and some cotton is of poor quality. Most late cotton has responded to improved moisture conditions and shows promise of somewhat better yields than expected earlier, particularly where insect control has been good."

The service said that the rice harvest is well underway with generally good yields. There is some concern about whether storage facilities will be adequate to handle the large crop, the report said.
